Congressional Quiz

Congress has started hearings on statehood for Alaska and will take up Hawaiian statehood in a few weeks. How good is your knowledge of this subject? Try for 5 out of 8 points.

1. Q--How did the United States acquire Hawaii: (a) by the Treaty of Portsmouth following the Russo-Japanese War; (b) by annexation in 1898; (c) as a gift from King Kamehameha in 1853; (d) by signing a Reciprocity Treaty in 1876? (1 point)

A--(b). Hawaii was annexed in 1898. In 1900 it was given the status of an incorporated territory and its constitution was approved by Congress.

2. Q--True or false: If admitted to statehood, Hawaii and Alaska would have only one Senator each because of their small populations. (1 point)

A--False. The Constitution provides equal Senate representation for all states. In the House, where representation is governed by population, Hawaii would have two representatives, Alaska one.

3. Q--When was the last state admitted to the Union? Which state was it? (2 points)

A--The state of Arizona was admitted Feb. 14, 1912.

4. Q--If Alaska and Hawaii were admitted, would they be the largest and smallest states respectively? (2 points)

A--Alaska's area of 571,065 square miles is more than twice that of Texas, the largest state. Hawaii has an area of 6,407 square miles, larger than the states of Rhode Island, Delaware and Connecticut.

5. Q--True or false: The Constitution prohibits statehood for any territory not bordering on existing other states. (1 point)

A--False. Some states, including California, were admitted to the Union while separated from other states by long distances.

6. Q--When did Congress last take action on Alaskan-Hawaiian statehood bills? (1 point)

A--A bill granting statehood to both territories was killed in the House in 1955. In 1954 the Senate passed a joint statehood bill after the House had approved admission of Hawaii in 1953. The House Rules Committee blocked a conference between the two chambers which might have resulted in admission of one or both territories.

Floor Action

FNMA FUND INCREASE

The House March 14 agreed, by voice vote, to Senate amendments to a resolution (H J Res 209) to provide interim assistance, through the Federal National Mortgage Agency, in relieving the shortage of funds for home loans. The resolution went to the White House. The Senate March 12 by voice vote had agreed to H J Res 209 after substituting the text of S 1325 and agreeing to an amendment prohibiting any state from receiving more than 10 percent of the funds available. House provisions agreed to by the Senate in H J Res 209 increased FNMA's capitalization by $50 million, to approximately $159 million, thus raising the borrowing authority $500 million, to $1.6 billion. The amount of FNMA secondary-market obligations the Treasury could acquire also would be increased by $350 million, to a maximum of $1.35 billion.

Additional provisions in the text of S 1325 that were not included in the original House version:

Increase by $50 million, to a total of $100 million, FNMA's authorization for the purchase of cooperative mortgages.

Increase, from $5 million to $12.5 million, the per state dollar limit on outstanding commitments.

BACKGROUND -- The House Feb. 20 passed H J Res 209 by voice vote; the Senate Banking and Currency Committee reported S 1325 Feb. 21 (S Rept 94). (Weekly Report, p. 271) For FNMA explanation, see p. 341.

AMENDMENT ACCEPTED -- SENATE

Russell B. Long (D La.) -- Retain ratio making a maximum of 10 percent of funds be available to any one state; March 12. Voice vote.

AMENDMENT REJECTED -- SENATE

Homer E. Capehart (R Ind.) -- Increase from $500 million to $750 million authorized purchases of home mortgages by FNMA; March 12. Voice vote.

DEBATE -- Lyndon B. Johnson (D Texas) -- "The pending bill is the best approach to this emergency problem. High cost money has received far too much impetus already."

George A. Smathers (D Fla.) -- "The emergency stopgap action" of the legislation was "obviously essential ...to prevent the complete deterioration of an already bad situation" in the home building industry.

SENATE OFFICE BUILDING

The Senate March 12 passed by voice vote, without amendment, and sent to the House three bills (S 1428, S 1429, S 1430) authorizing additional expenditures for constructing and furnishing a new Senate office building. There was no debate.

PROVISIONS -- As sent to the House, the bills would authorize:

Increasing the cost limit on building construction from $20.6 million to $23.4 million.

Enlarging and remodeling suites in the existing Senate office building.

BUDGET CUT RESOLUTION

The House March 12 adopted, by a roll-call vote of 220-178, a resolution (H Res 190) requesting President Eisenhower to "indicate the places and amounts in his budget where he thinks substantial reduction may best be made." H Res 190 had no legal force and required no further action by Congress or the President. A Republican recommitment motion with instructions to substitute a text that would commend the President and Budget Director Percival F. Brundage for their efforts to reduce Federal expenditures was rejected by a roll-call vote of 185-214. Republican attempts to amend and change the wording of the resolution were defeated. An open rule (H Res 192) to consider the legislation was adopted earlier by a roll-call vote of 219-185. (For voting, see chart, p. 330)

The President March 13 said he would be as helpful as possible, but it was up to Congress to determine how and whether the Administration's $71.8 billion budget could be cut. (Weekly Report, p. 339)

BACKGROUND -- The House Appropriations Committee March 11 reported H Res 190 (H Rept 187). The Committee said the resolution should not infer that the House or Committee "abdicate its constitutional responsibilities or that the Committee would be guided solely" by the Presidential recommendations that might result. The group said it would "exercise its independent judgment in the light of the situation and all the facts before it in each instance."

AMENDMENTS REJECTED

Earl Wilson (R Ind.) -- Instruct the Secretary of Defense to inform the House how the fiscal 1958 budget estimates of the Defense Department could be reduced by $3 billion "with the least possible adverse effect upon the national defense of the United States;" March 12. Voice vote.

Clare E. Hoffman (R Mich.) -- Require the Speaker of the House to "indicate" where substantial reductions could be made in the fiscal 1958 budget of the legislative branch of the Government; March 12. Voice.

Charles S. Gubser (R Calif.) -- Commend the President and Budget Director for requesting Government agencies to check their fiscal requirements in an effort to find places to cut their budgets, and request the President to forward the information to the House; March 12. Teller, 142-160.

DEBATE -- Errett P. Scrivner (R Kan.) -- The resolution was "the greatest abdication...of responsibility and duty by the House...in the history of this great Republic."

Thomas L. Ashley (D Ohio) -- "If the resolution does not go far enough, it is because we failed to ask the President what changes have occurred since he submitted his budget two months ago -- changes which now lead him to believe that that budget was too high and that it can be trimmed by several billion dollars."

Joseph W. Martin Jr. (R Mass.) -- The resolution was a "purely political gesture." He regretted "to see the Congress come to such a position where it is shirking its own responsibility...passing the buck."

HOUSE REJECTS EMERGENCY CORN PROGRAM

- HR 4901 -- Reported, amended, by the House Agriculture Committee Feb. 21, 1957 (H Rept 151).
 • Rejected, with amendments, by the House, on a 188-217 roll-call vote, March 13. (For voting, see chart, p. 334)

A plan for emergency aid to major corn producing areas was rejected by the House March 13, after efforts to include benefits for producers of other feed grains had been defeated. The action followed three days of partisan wrangling that caused Rep. H. Carl Andersen (R Minn.) to say he felt he was "attending the burial of the remains of the farm bloc." (For vote analysis, p. 334)

The Administration had warned that without emergency legislation corn and livestock prices might collapse, but Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson March 14 said he could have a "fairly effective" 1957 corn program without additional legislation.

PROVISIONS -- As rejected by the House, HR 4901 would have:

Offered commercial corn producers in 1957 a choice between the two alternatives offered them in a December, 1956, referendum. (They could accept a 51-million-acre planting base with eligibility for price supports at $1.31 a bushel dependent on putting the equivalent of 15 percent of their base acreage into the soil bank; or they could accept a 37.3-million-acre national allotment with price supports at $1.36 a bushel and soil bank participation voluntary.)

Limited payments to individual farmers to $5,000 in any one year.

Background

Congress, in the Agricultural Act of 1956, established a 51-million-acre national base acreage for corn, but required as a condition for price support that the equivalent of 15 percent of the farmer's base corn acreage be placed in the soil bank. The plan was to be effective in 1956, but would not be effective in subsequent years unless commercial corn growers voted to continue it. (1956 Almanac, p. 375)

In a referendum held Dec. 11, 1956, more than 61 percent of commercial corn growers -- but less than the required two-thirds -- voted to continue the plan. As a result, the national corn acreage allotment for 1957 was set, in accordance with the 1938 Agriculture Act, at 37.3 million acres with price supports at $1.36 a bushel.

Agricultural experts predicted that commercial corn producers would forfeit Federal aid rather than comply with such a small allotment, and corn surpluses would continue to increase as farmers overplanted to gain income.

Complicating the problem were the so-called small feed grains -- principally oats, rye, barley, grain sorghums and corn grown in non-commercial areas. Agriculture Department experts attributed much of the corn surplus to increased production of small feed grains on acres diverted from other basic crops and their subsequent use as a corn substitute, mostly for animal feed. Efforts to include small feed grains in the acreage reserve in 1956 were unsuccessful.

Committee Action

COMMITTEE -- House Agriculture

As reported, the bill would have established a 43.2-million-acre national corn allotment for 1957, set up a $300 million soil bank acreage reserve program for 1957 crops of small feed grains and increased by $250 million the 1957 authorization for acreage reserve compensation. Under a two-pronged feed grain program, producers of six basic farm commodities would have been permitted to put feed grain acreage equal to 18 percent of their acreage allotment for the basic crop into the acreage reserve. Payments would have ranged from $10 to $50 an acre. Or feed grain producers could have reduced their feed grain acreage by at least 15 percent and put any portion of the remainder in the acreage reserve with payments of $15 an acre.

The bill was a substitute for an Administration proposal: a three-year corn program tied to the soil bank, with corn prices supported at $1.24 a bushel -- about 70 percent of parity -- and planting expanded from 37.3 million to 51 million acres. The program would have ended all acreage limitations on corn when the soil bank expired in 1960 and thereafter no fixed corn supports would have been provided.

In hearings before the Committee, the American Farm Bureau Federation supported the Administration plan, but the National Farmers Union urged inclusion of feed grains in the acreage reserve. The National Grange supported a proposal by August H. Andresen (R Minn.), later offered by him as an amendment to HR 4901. (See below.)

Floor Action

The House March 13, by a 188-217 roll-call vote, rejected HR 4901 after substituting for the text of the Committee bill an amendment sponsored by Robert D. Harrison (R Neb.). A motion to recommit HR 4901, with the Harrison text, was defeated by a 168-237 roll call.

AMENDMENTS ACCEPTED

H. Carl Andersen (R Minn.) -- Amend Andresen amendment (later rejected, see below) to permit farmers who did not comply with production controls to put land in conservation reserve; March 7. Teller vote, 164-159.

Robert D. Harrison (R Neb.), as amended by Henry S. Reuss (D Wis.) -- Permit commercial corn producers to qualify for price supports on corn and participate in the soil bank program by complying with either of the alternatives presented in the Dec. 11, 1956, referendum; limit annual payments to any one farmer to $5,000; March 13. Teller, 174-155; division, 169-139.

Reuss -- Amend Harrison amendment to limit annual payments to any one farmer to $5,000; March 13. Voice.

AMENDMENTS REJECTED

August H. Andresen (R Minn.), as amended by Andersen -- Establish a 51-million-acre national allotment for corn in 1957, 1958 and 1959; require as a condition of eligibility for price supports that the farmer comply with his acreage allotment and put the equivalent of 15 percent of that allotment into the soil bank; permit farmers who do not comply with production controls to put land in the conservation reserve; March 7. Teller, 180-187.

W.R. Poage (D Texas) -- Direct Secretary of Agriculture to make acreage reserve payments to producers of small feed grains from funds previously allocated for such payments to producers of wheat, cotton, rice and tobacco and not obligated to those producers by April 1, 1957; March 13. First offered as an amendment to the Harrison amendment (see above) and rejected by a 139-159 teller vote; then offered as an amendment to the Cooley amendment (see below) and rejected by a 141-168 teller vote.

Harold D. Cooley (D N.C.) -- Establish a 51-million-acre base acreage for corn to continue as long as the acreage reserve program is in effect; eliminate corn acreage allotments; permit Secretary to set price supports for corn at 70-90 percent of parity; March 13. Teller, 141-167. (This was the Administration program, offered by Cooley as a "courtesy" to Benson.)

DEBATE -- March 6 -- Leslie C. Arends (R Ill.) -- The Committee bill "is masqueraded as corn legislation but is nothing more or less than a political monstrosity which...will add...a cost of between $700 million and $1 billion to the already heavy cost of the agriculture program.... It would turn the soil bank program into a grandiose giveaway...."

March 7 -- Charles A. Wolverton (R N.J.) -- "It seems that the southern growers are trying to take advantage of the present emergency affecting the corn growers of the Midwest to attach their crops to the legislation in a way to gain for them additional benefits...."

March 13 -- Charles H. Brown (D Mo.) -- "Cannot we find a way to get more for our money than to spend $1 billion and still not cut back production of unmarketable surpluses of six basic crops that are no longer as basic as they used to be?"

CORPORATE, EXCISE TAXES

The House March 14 passed by voice vote and sent to the Senate a bill (HR 4090) to extend until April 1, 1958, the current 52 percent corporate income tax rate and certain excise taxes scheduled for reduction April 1.

BACKGROUND -- President Eisenhower recommended the extension in his Jan. 16 Budget message. (Weekly Report, p. 69) HR 4090 was reported (H Rept 52) Feb. 7 by the House Ways and Means Committee, which said failure to pass the measure would necessitate approximately $180 million in refunds in fiscal 1958 to dealers for floor stocks, or inventories of taxed articles, on which rates would be reduced. (Weekly Report, p. 198) Sen. J.W. Fulbright (D Ark.) Feb. 21 said when the bill reached the Senate he would propose amending it to reduce tax rates on businesses with annual incomes of less than $25,000. (Weekly Report, p. 316)

PROVISIONS -- As sent to the Senate, HR 4090: Continued until April 1, 1958, the present 52 percent tax on corporation income. (Due to drop to 47 percent.) Continued excise taxes at pre-Korean war levels for the same period on distilled spirits, beer, wine, cigarettes, passenger automobiles and auto parts and accessories.

DEBATE -- March 14 -- Rep. William M. Colmer (D Miss.) -- The bill should not be necessary "at a time when we have an all-time high national income, an all-time peacetime high in taxes."

GENERAL GOVERNMENT FUNDS

The House March 13 passed by voice vote without amendment and sent to the Senate, a bill (HR 5788) to appropriate $16,021,370 for the Executive Office of the President and general Government agencies for fiscal 1958. There was little discussion.

BACKGROUND -- The House Appropriations Committee March 8 reported HR 5788 (H Rept 186), recommending the same amount approved by the House, but $4,900,500 less than requested by President Eisenhower and $13,895 more than the fiscal 1957 appropriation.

The major cut made by the Committee was one of $4 million from the $5 million request for the President's Emergency Fund for National Defense, which operated on $1 million in both fiscal 1956 and 1957.

PROVISIONS -- A breakdown of funds in HR 5788, as approved by the House:

Compensation of the President	$ 150,000
The White House Office	2,051,970
Special Projects	1,500,000

CONTEMPT CITATIONS

The Senate March 12 unanimously adopted two resolutions (S Res 96, 97) citing for contempt of Congress Ludwig Rajchmann, Polish delegate to the United Nations Childrens Emergency Fund, and Mrs. Pauline Feuer of New Orleans, La. The citations were recommended Feb. 25 by the Judiciary Committee (S Rept 98, 99).

Sen. Olin D. Johnston (D S.C.) told the Senate Rajchmann was guilty of "contemptuous defiance" of the Senate's authority when he "completely rejected...the instant it was served" a Feb. 18 subpoena to appear before the Internal Security Subcommittee.

Mrs. Feuer's citation was a replacement for a May 10, 1956, contempt citation (S Res 255) which was referred to the wrong agency. She was charged with failure to answer questions at an April, 1956, subcommittee hearing in New Orleans (1956 Almanac, p. 589)

FARM BLOC SPLIT KILLS CORN LEGISLATION

Who killed the corn bill? The House had no more than defeated an emergency corn program (HR 4901) March 13 (Weekly Report, p. 332) than partisan analyses of the politically significant roll call began. Republican Whip Leslie C. Arends (R Ill.) March 14 said "it is inescapable that the Democrat majority have the responsibility for the almost impossible situation that presently confronts the corn farmer." Other sources suggested that the calculated absence of certain big city Congressmen, or the selfish behavior of certain commodity interests -- cotton, tobacco and dairy products -- was responsible. What are the facts?

First, as to absentees. Of the 433 Representatives, 405 voted on both roll calls (see chart below). These included 252 Representatives from farm districts (shown by an asterisk) -- where 5 percent or more of the population was employed in agriculture, according to the 1954 Census of Agriculture -- and 153 Representatives of non-farm or city districts (where less than 5 percent of the 1954 population worked on farms). There are two vacancies in the House and Speaker Sam Rayburn (D Texas) traditionally refrains from voting. That left 27 Representatives who did not vote -- 10 from farm districts and 17 from city districts. Not voting were 14 Democrats and 13 Republicans. The margins of victory on the two roll calls (see below) were greater than the number of absentees, so their presence could not have altered the outcome.

Arends' assignment of responsibility for defeat of the bill to the Democrats is supported by the party breakdown of both roll calls. The move to recommit (kill) the corn bill (Roll Call 10 on chart) was defeated, 168-237. Democrats voted for recommital, 143-75; Republicans against, 25-162. The subsequent move to pass the bill (Roll Call 11 on chart) failed, 188-217. Democrats voted against passage, 63-156; Republicans for passage, 125-61. But to explain fully the responsibility for defeat of the corn bill one must identify and explain the shifts between the vote on recommital and the vote on passage, which followed immediately. How did the minority of 168 votes for recommitting the bill swell to the majority of 217 votes for defeating the bill? Why were 49 votes taken from one side of the scale and added to the other?

There were 68 individual switches of opinion between the two roll calls, indicated on the chart below by "N N" or "Y Y" votes. These were Members who either voted against both recommittal and against passage or for both recommittal and passage. The net result of these switches was that 36 Republicans who had voted against recommittal turned around and voted against passage of the corn bill. Twenty-one of these switch Republicans were from city districts; 15 of them were from farm districts, and their districts were notably low in corn production, ranging from 145th to 263rd (the lowest possible) in the nation.

As for the Democrats, the net result of their switches was that 13 votes against recommitment were switched and cast against passage. Eighteen city Democrats and four farm district Democrats switched sides to oppose passage of the bill. One city Democrat and nine farm Democrats

-- among them, the Representatives of the two largest corn-producing districts in the country, Reps. Merwin Coad (Iowa) and George S. McGovern (S.D.) -- who had voted to recommit (kill) the bill decided to vote for it on the final passage.

With the final margin of defeat for the corn bill 29 votes, partisans may well dispute whether the 36 Republican switches or the 13 Democratic switches against the measure were responsible for its demise.

Looked at from another angle, the corn bill vote showed not only a split between parties but between city and country. Farm district Members voted against recommittal, 95-157, and for passage, 147-105. City district Members were narrowly against recommittal, 73-80, but strongly against passage, 41-112.

On recommittee, Republican farm Members voted solidly (10-110) against recommitting the bill and were joined strongly (15-52) by their city colleagues, while Democrats from farm districts (85-47) and city districts (58-28) tried to send the measure back to committee.

When it came to final passage, Republican farm Members were the only group favoring the bill (95-25) but they had lost 15 votes. City Republicans switched sides entirely, voting (30-36) against passage. Farm Democrats were weaker in their opposition (52-80) than they had been but city Democrats were even more strongly (11-76) against the measure.

What about commodity interests? Congressional Quarterly checked the votes of Representatives from the 20 districts that grew the largest quantities of each of several important crops according to the 1954 census. There was one absentee (H. R. Gross, R Iowa) from the top 20 corn districts; the other 19, including two Democrats and 17 Republicans, voted unanimously for passage of the corn bill.

- Voted unanimously for passage of the corn bill.
 - The top wheat districts supported the bill, 16-5, with Republicans 13-1 in favor and Democrats 3-4 opposed.
 - The top dairy districts, surprisingly perhaps, also voted for the corn bill, 12-7. Republicans from these districts voted for passage, 11-4; Democrats against, 1-3.
 - Wool districts favored the corn bill, 13-8, with Republicans 8-1 behind it and Democrats 5-7 against it.
 - Top rice districts, all represented by Democrats, gave the bill a narrow 10-9 vote of support.
 - Leading districts in fruit and nut production split 9-11 against passage, with Republicans 6-3 for the bill and Democrats 3-8 against.
 - Cotton Congressmen voted against the bill, 8-11, with the sole Republican, Rep. John J. Rhodes (R Ariz.), casting one of the eight votes for the measure.
 - The top tobacco districts went against the bill, 8-10, with two of the "yes" votes for passage coming from the only two Republicans, B. Carroll Reece (R Tenn.) and Eugene Siler (R Ky.).
 - The strongest opposition came from the leading peanut districts, all represented by Democrats, who voted 6-14 against passage of the bill.

Committee Roundup

EDUCATION AID

COMMITTEE -- House Education and Labor, General Education Subcommittee.

CONCLUDED HEARINGS -- On a bill (HR 3986) embodying the Administration program for Federal school construction aid. (Weekly Report, p. 302)

TESTIMONY -- March 8 -- Spokesmen for New York and Ohio State Chambers of Commerce said states should handle their own school problems. Philip C. Wolz of the New York Chamber said his group was not opposed to Federal school construction aid if the need for aid could be proven. "But unwillingness must not be confused with inability," he said.

March 11 -- Spokesmen for the Virginia and Massachusetts Farm Bureau Federations and the Connecticut Public Expenditures Council Inc. opposed the bill.

March 12 -- Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Marion B. Folsom said the "very serious classroom shortage" would "not be erased by statistical legerdemain or by pretending it does not exist." The National Assn. of Manufacturers, in a prepared statement, said the financing of education was the responsibility of state and local governments and that Federal aid was unnecessary.

March 13 -- Herbert S. Conrad, Acting Assistant Commissioner of Education for Research, and Dr. Lawrence G. Derthick, U.S. Commissioner of Education, defended the reliability of their figures on classroom shortages.

March 14 -- Seventeen organizations, in a letter to Folsom inserted in the hearing record, upheld his testimony. Among the organizations were the American Assn. of University Women, the National Assn. of Social Workers, the National Education Assn. and the National Farmers' Union.

Subcommittee Chairman Cleveland M. Bailey (D W.Va.) said at the end of the hearings that "we're going to have to have a compromise to get a bill approved."

RELATED DEVELOPMENTS -- March 10 -- Folsom said the Chamber of Commerce of the U.S. had made "seriously misleading and inaccurate statements" in its campaign against the school aid bill. Folsom challenged a Chamber statement that in school years 1947-48 through 1956-57 490,000 classrooms were built compared to a need of 291,000 to handle increased enrollment. Folsom said this ignored "new classroom needs resulting from obsolescence, population shifts, school consolidation or losses due to fire and natural disasters." These factors alone, he said, would require 14,000-20,000 new classrooms a year. He also said the Chamber erred in comparing construction during the school year with the increased enrollment at the beginning of the same year. Finally, he took issue with a Chamber statement that "the Office of Education's most recent estimate placed the need for 1956-57 at 41,300 -- 69,000 were built!" "In this statement," Folsom said, "the Chamber is counting rooms that have not yet been built" and using an estimate of rooms the states expected to build "by next fall."

March 11 -- Executive Secretary William G. Carr of the National Education Assn. said Folsom's statement was "devastating and fully justified."

ALASKAN STATEHOOD

COMMITTEE -- House Interior and Insular Affairs, Territorial and Insular Affairs Subcommittee.

BEGAN HEARINGS -- On HR 50 and similar bills providing statehood for Alaska. (Weekly Report, p. 305)

TESTIMONY -- March 11 -- A statement from Interior Secretary Fred A. Seaton proposed admission as a state of all the existing territory of Alaska under conditions permitting the President to withdraw, for use as military reservations, the northern, less populated areas of the territory. Seaton's statement on the Administration proposal said that almost 90 percent of Alaska's population lived outside the estimated military withdrawal zone -- the area north and west of Porcupine, Yukon, and Kuskokwim Rivers. Gen. Nathan F. Twining, acting chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said there was no reason under current world conditions for the President to exercise his proposed withdrawal power.

March 12 -- C.W. Snedden, publisher of the Fairbanks (Alaska) Daily News Miner, said Alaskan statehood was "absolutely essential" to the territory and the United States.

March 13 -- "Sen.-Designate" Ernest Gruening, former Alaska governor (1939-1953), described Alaska's 90 years as a territory as a period "of neglect, indifference and even worse, discrimination, without parallel or precedent in the history" of the United States.

RELATED DEVELOPMENT -- March 13 -- The House Interior and Insular Affairs Committee authorized and directed Chairman Clair Engle (D Calif.) to appear before the House Rules Committee to oppose a resolution (H Res 159) to require statehood bills to pass through the Rules Committee before reaching the House floor.

DEPRESSED AREAS

COMMITTEE -- Senate Banking and Currency, Production and Stabilization Subcommittee.

CONTINUED HEARINGS -- On bills (S 104, 964 and 1433) to aid depressed areas suffering chronic unemployment. (Weekly Report, p. 304)

TESTIMONY -- March 8 -- Sen. Frederick G. Payne (R Maine) said the Administration bill (S 1433) of which he was co-sponsor, was designed to supplement state and local efforts to relieve chronic unemployment with "a minimum outlay of funds." Sens. John A. Carroll (D Colo.) and James E. Murray (D Mont.) supported a bill (S 964) sponsored by Subcommittee Chairman Paul H. Douglas (D Ill.).

March 11 -- AFL-CIO Secretary-Treasurer William F. Schnitzler, Legislative Representative John J. Gunther of Americans for Democratic Action, Sen. Matthew M. Neely, Rep. Leroy Anderson (D Mont.) and Mayor John F. Kane of Fall River, Mass., supported S 964. Rep. James E. Van Zandt (R Pa.) said prospects for passage of either the Administration or the Douglas bill were "dim." He urged passage of a compromise bill containing the "best portions" of both measures.

March 13 -- Pennsylvania Gov. George M. Leader (D) and members of his state cabinet favored S 964.

FOREIGN AID REPORTS

COMMITTEE -- Senate Special Committee to Study the Foreign Aid Program.

BACKGROUND -- The Special Committee was created in 1956 and must file its final report by June 30, 1957. (1956 Almanac, p. 641)

ACTION -- Feb. 20-March 14 released eight in a series of advisory reports on the foreign aid program.

Feb. 20 -- Hamilton Fish Armstrong, editor of Foreign Affairs magazine, in a report on U.S. aid in Lebanon, Jordan, and Iraq, urged that the program for the Middle East be pursued "simultaneously along both economic and political lines." He also said appropriations for military aid should be separated from other foreign aid appropriations.

Feb. 28 -- A report on the Objectives of United States Economic Assistance Programs prepared by the Center for International Studies, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, recommended a program that the U.S. would "pursue consistently for at least five or 10 years and...not permit to be affected by changes in the international situation." The report said foreign aid should be applied "not only to areas currently in crisis but to all underdeveloped areas."

Feb. 28 -- A report on American Private Enterprise, Foreign Economic Development and the Aid Programs, prepared by the American Enterprise Assn. Inc., said Congress should consider proposals for reducing taxes on foreign business and personal income.

March 1 -- Personnel for the Mutual Security Program, a study prepared by Louis J. Kroeger and Associates, San Francisco, said programs and projects had been "seriously affected" because manpower requirements were not met.

March 3 -- In a report on U.S. foreign aid in Greece, Turkey and Iran, retired Ambassador Norman Armour said estimates of "Turkey's military capabilities may be overly optimistic" and that Iran needed "substantial assistance from the U.S." to provide "some resistance to any Soviet aggression." Armour said officials in Turkey and Iran made "most insistent appeals" that the U.S. join the Baghdad Pact.

March 5 -- David K.E. Bruce, Ambassador-designate to the Federal Republic of Germany, in a report on aid in South America, said "maximum freedom for programming...should be allowed...to permit proper adjustment to local conditions." Bruce said sale of U.S. agricultural surpluses for local currencies "could be potentially dangerous to normal patterns of trade."

March 7 -- A report on the Role of Foreign Aid in the Development of Other Countries, prepared by the Research Center in Economic Development and Cultural Change of the University of Chicago, said it might take economic aid of $5 billion yearly to stabilize Asia, the Middle East and Africa against Communism. The report said "all countries outside the Soviet orbit should be included in this aid program, even those...not military allies of the U.S." The group also suggested a long-range program "on a sustained magnitude over a period of 10 to 20 years, as a minimum."

March 14 -- A study of the Use of Private Contractors in Foreign Aid Programs, prepared by Jerome Jacobson Associates, Washington, D.C., called for clarification of the role of technical assistance and services in foreign aid.

TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE PROGRAMS

COMMITTEE -- Senate Foreign Relations, Technical Assistance Subcommittee.

ACTION -- March 12 filed its final report (S Rept 139) on a two and a half year study of technical assistance programs. (1956 Almanac, p. 642)

The Subcommittee said the program in Latin America should be continued "at approximately its present level." It urged the Government to "increase substantially" the technical aid programs in Africa with specific emphasis on help for new nations in the fields of public administration and resource utilization. The group also said the United States should continue its support of the technical assistance program of the Organization of American States.

LABOR RACKETS INVESTIGATION

COMMITTEE -- Senate Select Committee on Improper Activities in the Labor and Management Fields.

TESTIMONY -- March 8 -- Committee counsel Robert Kennedy said investigators had found 35 gambling places and houses of prostitution operating "wide open, some on split shifts" in Portland, Ore. Portland Mayor Terry D. Schrunk said he could not remember closing any such operations during his seven years as sheriff or since he became Mayor Jan. 1.

March 12 -- Clyde Crosby, Teamster international representative in Portland, said union dues money had been used to pay the expenses of Thomas E. Mahoney and Joseph P. McLaughlin, identified by the Committee as "Seattle gamblers." Crosby denied testimony of Howard Morgan, Oregon public utilities commissioner, that Teamster elements had tried to take over law enforcement in Oregon and prevent an investigation of the State Liquor Commission. Crosby called Morgan "a political opportunist without the slightest sense of moral responsibility."

Schrunk said he refused March 11 to take a Secret Service lie detector test because questions given him were "loaded" and "irrelevant."

March 13 -- Reginald R. Mikesell, secretary of Teamsters Portland Joint Council No. 37, said the Council had paid a $5,000 "retainer" fee to the lawyer for indicted District Attorney William M. Langley of Portland. Mikesell also said most of the financial records of Council No. 37 had been destroyed.

March 14 -- Langley invoked the Fifth Amendment when questioned by the Committee as to his alleged interests in gambling establishments.

RELATED DEVELOPMENT -- March 13 -- The FBI arrested James R. Hoffa, Teamsters vice president, on charges of bribery in connection with securing data from the files of the Senate Committee. The FBI said Hoffa, when arrested, "had in his possession documents from the Committee files which he had just received."

The FBI charged Hoffa with hiring John Cye Cheasty, a lawyer, to get a job with the Committee and supply him with information from the files. The FBI said Cheasty cooperated with it and the Committee during the month-long investigation that led to Hoffa's arrest. The FBI said Hoffa paid Cheasty $1,000 when he secured the Committee job and offered to pay him $18,000 for information during the Committee's investigation.

Committee Roundup - 3

MONETARY STUDY

COMMITTEE -- House Rules.

ACTION -- March 13 ordered reported a resolution (H Res 85) to authorize the House Banking and Currency Committee to undertake "a full and complete investigation and study" of national monetary and credit policies. The resolution was endorsed Jan. 22 by the Banking and Currency Committee, despite President Eisenhower's Jan. 10 request for a citizens' commission to conduct the study. (Weekly Report, p. 101)

HOUSING PROGRAM

COMMITTEE -- House Banking and Currency, Housing Subcommittee.

CONTINUED HEARINGS -- On the Administration housing program and bills to improve the flow of mortgage credit to housing. (Weekly Report, p. 303)

TESTIMONY -- March 8 -- William A. Marcus of the Mortgage Bankers Assn. of America said if veterans were to continue to receive preferred help in financing home mortgages, the Government must abolish "unrealistic" fixed interest rates on GI loans and allow them to move up or down according to the money market.

W. Franklin Morrison of the National Savings and Loan League suggested giving "some rate flexibility to Government insured and guaranteed mortgages so as to make the yield on mortgages competitive with yields on other investments." He said lower down payments did not "encourage home ownership" at a time when the Federal Reserve System was practicing credit restraints.

Silas F. Albert of the National Assn. of Real Estate Boards supported Administration proposals to reduce down payments. NAREB also advocated flexible interest rates on Federal Housing Administration and Veterans Administration mortgages and a $1 billion increase in borrowing authority for the Federal National Mortgage Assn. NAREB opposed Government control of discounts on FHA and VA mortgages and the proposed use of $1 billion in National Service Life Insurance funds for Treasury purchase of VA-guaranteed mortgage loans.

March 11 -- Spokesmen for the American Life Convention and the Life Insurance Assn. of America said easing FHA down payment requirements would make home loans harder to get, raise prices and result in more delinquencies and foreclosures. President Knox Banner of the National Assn. of Housing and Redevelopment Officials recommended more liberal regulations covering income-rent ratios in the low-rent housing program and a minimum increase of $250 million in obligational authority for the Urban Renewal Administration.

March 12 -- A.D. Theobald of the Chamber of Commerce of the U.S. recommended a halt to most forms of Federal housing aid, a flexible interest rate on GI mortgage loans and more dependence on free market conditions. William Levitt, president of Levitt and Sons, Philadelphia building firm, said the building industry was in a "state of chaos and collapse" requiring drastic steps by the Government to avert a "building depression."

March 13 -- Executive Director Kenneth M. Birkhead of the American Veterans Committee opposed increasing interest rates on GI home loans and favored increasing direct Government home loans to veterans. David L. Krooth of the National Housing Conference supported an increase in FNMA borrowing authority and special financing assistance for middle-income housing.

MINIMUM WAGE

COMMITTEE -- Senate Labor and Public Welfare, Labor Subcommittee.

CONTINUED HEARINGS -- On proposals to extend minimum wage coverage under the Fair Labor Standards Act. (Weekly Report, p. 303)

TESTIMONY -- March 8 -- President Joseph A. Beirne of the Communications Workers of America (AFL-CIO) said the minimum wage should be increased from $1 to $1.25 an hour. He also asked Congress to extend minimum wage and maximum hour protection to 22,400 telephone switchboard operators employed in exchanges having less than 750 telephones.

President Max Greenberg of the Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union (AFL-CIO) said a total of 20 million workers "are now denied the protection" of the minimum wage law and the 40-hour week. Nearly one-third of the excluded employees, he said, were retail workers.

March 11 -- President Rowland Jones Jr. of the American Retail Federation said application of the Federal wage-hour law to retail and service industries would "destroy job opportunities for thousands" of temporary and part-time employees. George W. Priehs of the Michigan Retailers Assn. said that to "tie the rates of retailing pay to an hourly rate is to confess to a total ignorance of the basic employment problem in retailing." He said his own company could not absorb the wage increase without an 8½ percent price increase. Executive Director Clifford A. Allanson of the New York State Council of Retail Merchants Inc. said "proper regulation" over local wage rates "can only be arrived at within the boundaries of the state."

March 14 -- Opposing extension of minimum wage coverage were representatives of the American Pulpwood Assn., Alabama Forest Producers, National Assn. of Direct Sellers, National Cotton Council, Vegetable Growers Assn. of America, National Farmers Union, National Federation of Independent Business, American Transit Assn. and the National Tire Dealers Assn.

RELATED DEVELOPMENTS -- March 13 -- Charles B. Mahin of the National Retail Lumber Dealers Assn., testifying before the House Education and Labor, Labor Subcommittee, said his industry was "realistic" and viewed minimum wage proposals before the Subcommittee "as forerunner efforts for complete coverage."

GOVERNMENT INFORMATION

COMMITTEE -- House Government Operations, Government Information Subcommittee.

BEGAN HEARINGS -- On Defense Department information practices. (Weekly Report, p. 266)

TESTIMONY -- March 11 -- Former Assistant Secretary of Defense Charles A. Coolidge, who headed a 1956 study of Defense Department news policies, said his committee had concluded that the Pentagon classified too much information and had "no real program" for declassifying it when the need for secrecy had passed. Coolidge defended his group's suggestion that reporters be called before grand juries for questioning about news "leaks" that damage the national security. "There should be some limit to the sometimes limitless claims of the press to immunity," he said. Under the advisory committee's suggestion, he continued, a reporter would not be prosecuted for writing a story based on a leak; he would be questioned only when there was no other way to find the source.

Around The Capitol

ECONOMIC AID REPORT

The President's International Development Advisory Board March 7 recommended a large-scale, long-range program of economic aid separated from military aid, for underdeveloped nations whether or not they were neutral in the "cold war" or agreed completely with United States foreign policy. The Board, headed by Eric Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Assn. of America, proposed a new program based on establishment of an International Development Fund to operate through the International Cooperation Administration of the State Department. Although the Board did not specify an exact amount for the Fund, it said it should be "sufficient for a substantial increase in capital investment and technical assistance programs" and that appropriations for it should be established for a "minimum of three years without requiring additional financing." The Johnston group said the Fund should place major emphasis on loans rather than grants to underdeveloped nations and "should encourage and step aside in favor of private investments."

The report by the IDAB followed a March 5 report by the President's Citizen Advisers on the Mutual Security Program. (Weekly Report, p. 318)

Capitol Briefs

TAFT-HARTLEY REVISION

Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell March 11 told the legislative conference of the Building and Construction Trades Department (AFL-CIO) the Administration soon would recommend several amendments to the Taft-Hartley Act, including one to legalize pre-hire contracts in the construction trades industry. (Weekly Report, p. 313)

AID TO POLAND

Sen. John F. Kennedy (D Mass.) March 12 urged approval of Poland's request for economic aid. Senate GOP Leader William F. Knowland (R Calif.) March 9 reiterated his opposition to such aid, suggesting it might be the beginning of a "Communist Marshall Plan" for all of Eastern Europe. (Weekly Report, p. 273)

FISCAL 1958 BUDGET

The Senate Republican Policy Committee March 12 agreed it was "in accord with the President's recommendation that Congress reduce the budget wherever possible." The House GOP Policy Committee March 5 called for "substantial" budget reductions. (Weekly Report, p. 317, 329) Senate Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (D Texas) March 12 said he had requested the Joint Committee on Reduction of Non-Essential Expenditures to list "non-essential" outlays for possible cuts.

Eisenhower Meets Press

President Eisenhower March 13 told the fifth press conference of his second term that Congress authorizes specific projects and provides the money for them, and for that reason Congress should decide where any cuts should be made in the fiscal 1958 budget. He said he would be as helpful to Congress as possible in finding ways to cut the budget. (Weekly Report, p. 317, 329)

The President also said:

He would take no part in any contest for the Republican nomination for New York governor in 1958. He said his remarks March 7 that he would be a "booster" for former GOP National Chairman Leonard W. Hall if Hall sought the nomination did not mean he would intervene in any contest for the nomination. If Hall were nominated, the President said, Hall would receive his enthusiastic support.

He did not think it necessary for him to say now what he might do in 1958 toward endorsing Republican candidates. (Weekly Report, p. 343)

He had never heard it mentioned to him that he was becoming inaccessible to Members of Congress. His Administration has no current plans for any over-all increase in foreign aid spending.

He would be guided by later recommendations on a policy of granting aid to Poland.

Plans for him to take a Florida vacation had been abandoned; instead he would cruise leisurely to Bermuda for talks with British Prime Minister Harold MacMillan.

Doctors March 12 had told him after a physical examination that he was in good shape.

UNION POLITICAL SPENDING

The Supreme Court March 11 reinstated, by a 5-3 verdict, an indictment charging that the United Auto Workers violated Federal law by using money from the Union's general fund to pay for political television broadcasts over a Detroit commercial station in 1954. District Judge Frank A. Picard of Detroit Feb. 3, 1956, ruled the payments did not violate sections of the Corrupt Practices Act and dismissed the indictment against the UAW. (Weekly Report, p. 287)

Justice William O. Douglas, who wrote the dissenting opinion, said the decision "greatly impaired" such rights as freedom of expression and freedom of assembly guaranteed under the First Amendment of the Constitution. Chief Justice Earl Warren and Justice Hugo L. Black also dissented. The majority decision did not rule on the constitutionality of the campaign spending law restricting unions and corporations from contributing to political campaigns. The minority opinion said the law should be declared unconstitutional. (For excerpts from the opinions, Weekly Report, p. 340)

Partial Text...

MAJORITY, MINORITY VIEWS ON COURT ELECTION SPENDING DECISION

Following is the abridged text of the Supreme Court decision March 11 reinstating, 5-3, the indictment of the United Auto Workers for alleged violation of Section 610 of the Federal Corrupt Practices Act, forbidding "expenditures in connection with" Federal elections by labor unions or corporations. (Weekly Report, p. 287, 339)

Majority (Justice Frankfurter)

What is involved here is the integrity of our electoral process, and, not less, the responsibility of the individual citizen for the successful functioning of that process. This case thus raises issues not less than basic to a democratic society....

The indictment charged appellee (the union) with having used union dues to sponsor commercial television broadcasts designed to influence the electorate to select certain candidates for Congress in connection with the 1954 elections. To deny that such activity, either on the part of a corporation or a labor organization, constituted an "expenditure in connection with any federal election" is to deny the long series of Congressional efforts calculated to avoid the deleterious influences on Federal elections resulting from the use of money by those who exercise control over large aggregations of capital....

United States v. CIO...presented a different situation. The decision in that case (upholding the dismissal of the indictment) rested on the court's reading of an indictment that charged defendants with having distributed only to union members or purchasers an issue...of "The CIO News," a weekly newspaper owned and published by the CIO. That issue contained a statement by the CIO president urging all members of the CIO to vote for a certain candidate. Thus, unlike the union-sponsored political broadcast alleged in this case, the communication for which the defendants were indicted in CIO was neither directed nor delivered to the public at large. The organization merely distributed its house organ to its own people. The evil at which Congress has struck...is the use of corporate or union dues to influence the public at large to vote for a particular candidate or a particular party....

Appellee (the union) urges that if, as we hold, (the statute) embraces the activity alleged in the indictment, it offends several rights guaranteed by the Constitution. The Government replies that the actual restraint upon union political activity imposed by the statute is so narrowly limited that Congress did not exceed its powers to protect the political process from undue influence of large aggregations of capital and to promote individual responsibility for democratic government....

The impressive lesson of history confirms the wisdom of the repeated enunciation...of self-imposed inhibition against passing on the validity of an Act of Congress "unless absolutely necessary to a decision of the case."...Clearly in this case it is not "absolutely necessary to a decision"...to canvass the constitutional issues.... Our reversal of the district judge's erroneous construction clears the way for the prosecution to proceed.

Refusal to anticipate constitutional questions is peculiarly appropriate in the circumstances of this case. First of all, these questions come to us unilluminated by the consideration of a single judge -- we are asked to decide them in the first instance. Again, only an adjudication on the merits can provide the concrete factual setting that sharpens the deliberative process especially demanded for constitutional decision. Finally, by remanding the case for trial it may well be that the court will not be called upon to pass on the questions now raised....

Enough has been said to justify withholding determination of the more or less abstract issues of constitutional law. Because the districts court's erroneous interpretation of the statute led it to stop the prosecution prematurely, its judgment must be reversed and the case must be remanded to it for further proceedings not inconsistent with this opinion.

Minority (Justice Douglas)

We deal here with a problem that is fundamental to the electoral process and to the operation of our democratic society. It is whether a union can express its views on the issues of an election and on the merits of the candidates, unrestrained and unfettered by the Congress. The principle at stake is not peculiar to unions. It is applicable as well to associations of manufacturers, retail and wholesale trade groups, consumers' leagues, farmers' unions, religious groups and every other association representing a segment of American life and taking an active part in our political campaigns and discussions....

The people determine through their votes the destiny of the nation. It is therefore important -- vitally important -- that all channels of communication be open to them during every election, that no point of view be restrained or barred, and that the people have access to the views of every group in the community....

What the court does today greatly impairs those rights. Until today political speech has never been considered a crime. The making of a political speech up to now has always been one of the preferred rights protected by the First Amendment. It usually costs money to communicate an idea to a large audience. But no one would seriously contend that the expenditure of money to print a newspaper deprives the publisher of freedom of the press. Nor can the fact that it costs money to make a speech -- whether it be hiring a hall or purchasing time on the air -- make the speech any the less an exercise of First Amendment rights. Yet this statute, as construed and applied in this indictment, makes criminal any "expenditure" by a union for the purpose of expressing its views on the issues of an election and the candidates....

Can an Act so construed be constitutional in view of the command of the First Amendment that Congress shall make no law that abridges free speech or freedom of assembly? The court says that the answer on the constitutional issue must await the development of the facts at the trial.

It asks, "Did the broadcast reach the public at large or only those affiliated with appellee (the union)?" But the size of the audience or its nature has heretofore been deemed wholly irrelevant to First Amendment issues. One has a right to freedom of speech not only when he talks to his associates and friends but also when he talks to the public. It is startling to learn that a union spokesman or the spokesman for a corporate interest has fewer constitutional rights when he talks to the public than when he talks to members of his group.

The court asks whether the broadcast constituted "active electioneering" or simply stated "the record of particular candidates on economic issues." What possible difference can it make under the First Amendment whether it was one or the other?...

The court asks, "Did the union sponsor the broadcast with the intent to affect the results of the election?" ...Any politician worth his salt intends to sway voters. His purpose to do so cannot possibly rob him of his First Amendment rights, unless we are to reduce that great guarantee of freedom to the protection of meaningless mouthings of ineffective speakers.

Finally, the court asks whether the broadcast was "paid for out of the general dues of the union membership or may the funds be fairly said to have been obtained on a voluntary basis." Behind this question is the idea that there may be a minority of union members who are of a different political school than their leaders and who object to the use of their union dues to espouse one political view....

If minorities need protection against the use of union funds for political speech-making, there are ways of reaching that end without denying the majority their First Amendment rights.... Some may think that one group or another should not express its views in an election because it is too powerful, because it advocates unpopular ideas, or because it has a record of lawless action. But these are not justifications for withholding First Amendment rights from any group -- labor or corporate....

FNMA SLATED FOR BIGGER HOUSING ROLE

The 85th Congress will enlarge the world's biggest mortgage company -- the Federal National Mortgage Assn. (Weekly Report, p. 329) The FNMA (Fannie Mae) is a Government agency that buys and sells home mortgages backed by the Veterans Administration and the Federal Housing Administration. The FNMA is a middleman between tight and loose money areas. The agency buys mortgages in one place and sells them in another, thereby spreading around the supply of mortgage money.

The homeowner knows nothing about this mortgage trading. He just keeps making his mortgage payments to the same bank. But the prospective homebuyer gets help indirectly from the FNMA.

- How does Fannie Mae operate?
- What influence does it play in the current tight money market?
- What is its future?

Background

The Federal National Mortgage Assn. first was chartered Feb. 10, 1938, under Title 3 of the National Housing Act. It was rechartered with revised functions under the 1954 Housing Act.

Fannie Mae comes under the Housing and Home Finance Agency. A board of directors including Housing and Home Finance Administrator Albert M. Cole and Fannie Mae President J. Stanley Baughman sets Fannie Mae policy.

The purpose of Fannie Mae is three-fold: (1) to effect "a degree of liquidity" in the mortgage money market; (2) "to provide special assistance for such special housing programs as those for the aged and military as well as special assistance for 'home mortgages generally as a means of retarding or stopping a decline in mortgage lending and home building activities which threatens materially the stability of a high-level national economy;" (3) to sell the mortgages it bought under its old charter.

The tight money market and the consequent lag in home building puts Fannie Mae's "liquidity" function in the spotlight. A detailed discussion of that activity follows.

'Liquidity' Function

Fannie Mae buys and sells home mortgages that are guaranteed by the Veterans Administration or insured by the Federal Housing Administration. It deals only with banks and other lending institutions, not individuals. Fannie Mae buys mortgages in areas where money is scarce and sells them in areas where money is plentiful.

● EXAMPLE: A San Francisco bank has so much of its money tied up in mortgages that it cannot afford to lend money for new ones. But a New York savings and loan association has cash it wants to invest in home mortgages. Fannie Mae, acting as a trader, could buy 100 mortgages from the San Francisco bank and sell them to the New York institution. The transaction would not be known to homeowners who would continue to make their mortgage payments to the San Francisco bank.

These are the steps a banker would take to sell a $10,000 mortgage to Fannie Mae:

1. Contacts one of Fannie Mae's regional offices in Atlanta, Chicago, Dallas, Los Angeles or Philadelphia and offers to sell the mortgage.
2. Fannie Mae examines the mortgage and decides whether to buy it.
3. If Fannie Mae decides to buy the mortgage for an agreeable price, the banker delivers the mortgage to the agency within 45 days after he accepts the offer.
4. Banker buys $200 worth of Fannie Mae common stock since the agency requires a stock purchase equal to 2 percent of the amount of the mortgage.

Standby Commitments

Besides buying mortgages outright, Fannie Mae can promise to buy mortgages for houses that are not yet built. This enables a bank to assure a builder that mortgage money will be available for houses he wants to build. This advance promise to buy mortgages is called a standby commitment.

Fannie Mae charges the bank 1 percent of the mortgage amount involved for a standby commitment. The commitment is good for one year. The bank can sell the mortgages somewhere else before the year is up or sell them to Fannie Mae. The bank must buy 2 percent worth of Fannie Mae stock if it ends up selling the mortgage to the agency.

● EXAMPLE: A bank gets a commitment from Fannie Mae that the agency will buy $100,000 worth of FHA or VA home mortgages for $94,000. A year after the standby commitment was made, the bank still has the mortgages since it could not sell them anywhere else for more than $94,000. It paid $1,000 in cash (1 percent of the mortgage amount) for the standby commitment and now must spend an additional $2,000 (2 percent of the mortgage amount) on Fannie Mae stock in order to sell the mortgages to the agency.

Repurchase Option

A bank or other lending institution may arrange to repurchase mortgages it sold to Fannie Mae. This repurchase option costs the bank $\frac{1}{4}$ of 1 percent of the mortgage amount.

● EXAMPLE: A bank wants cash, so it sells a $10,000 home mortgage to Fannie Mae for $9,500. But within nine months after the sale to Fannie Mae the bank finds a customer who will pay $9,700 for the mortgage. The bank will net $150 additional by repurchasing the mortgage and reselling it.

Fannie Mae purchases mortgages "within the range" of market prices. That means that in an area where a $10,000 mortgage is selling for $9,500, Fannie Mae would pay about that amount. If Fannie Mae paid the full $10,000 par value, it would become a vast dumping ground for home mortgages. Fannie Mae does not want to set its purchase prices so high that it will compete with private lending institutions.

Tight Money Role

As a rule, Fannie Mae buys mortgages when money is scarce and sells them when money is plentiful. Today's tight money market has prompted banks and other lending institutions to sell an increasing number of mortgages to Fannie Mae.

Banks by selling to Fannie Mae during a tight money period convert their mortgages to cash and reinvest the money into more profitable channels. The accompanying chart shows the sharp increase in mortgage purchasing by Fannie Mae. The agency will have $1 billion worth of mortgages on hand by the end of March, a record under its new charter.

Fannie Mae President Baughman March 6 said the agency has "helped quite a little" in easing the tightness of the mortgage money market. He said mortgage discounts -- the amount the bank charges a home buyer for granting the loan -- would have been higher without the price floor furnished by Fannie Mae. Baughman predicted the agency would exert an even greater influence on the mortgage market as its activities expand. (A 10 percent mortgage discount would be when the prospective home buyer is charged for a $10,000 mortgage but only gets $9,000 from the bank.)

Fannie Mae's Financing

Fannie Mae gets its money to buy mortgages from (1) its own operations, such as selling its stock and mortgages, (2) borrowing from the U.S. Treasury, and (3) selling debentures in the open market.

Fannie Mae's charter stipulates that the agency may borrow for its mortgage operations 10 times its total capital and surplus. Fannie Mae's capital consists of the stock it has issued; the surplus is money the agency has earned but has not paid out for overhead or dividends.

Treasury Purchase

To capitalize the agency, the Treasury Department in 1954 bought $92.8 million worth of Fannie Mae preferred stock. Since then, Fannie Mae also has sold $14.7 million worth of common stock to banks and other lending institutions. Its surplus at the end of calendar year 1956 amounted to about $2.3 million. So its outstanding stock and surplus at the end of 1956 totaled $110 million.

With a total capital and surplus of $110 million, Fannie Mae can borrow for its mortgage trading 10 times that amount, or about $1.1 billion. But $1.1 billion is not enough to enable Fannie Mae to buy all the mortgages it wants to. So the agency wants Congress to increase its borrowing capacity by authorizing the Treasury to buy more Fannie Mae preferred stock.

Baughman Feb. 7 told the House Banking and Currency Committee that "because of the severe shortage of funds in the residential mortgage market, there has been a marked increase in the number and amount of mortgages offered to FNMA for purchase with the result that it has become apparent that FNMA must have additional capital if it is to continue to carry out the purposes for which the secondary market operations were established.... We in FNMA are of the opinion that it is especially important that the Association be able to continue its purchasing activities as intended in times like the present when money is tight and mortgage financing is difficult to obtain."

The House Feb. 20 adopted by voice vote a resolution (H J Res 209) to authorize the Treasury to buy an

Fannie Mae Buying

The Federal National Mortgage Assn. has been buying home mortgages from banks and other lending institutions at an ever-increasing rate since its chartering in 1954. FNMA will have $1 billion worth of home mortgages in its portfolio by the end of March, a new high. It has sold only $5 million worth of home mortgages since 1954.

additional $50 million worth of Fannie Mae stock, thereby increasing the agency's borrowing authority by $500 million. A similar bill (S 1325) is awaiting action in the Senate and little opposition is expected. The additional $500 million borrowing authority is just a stop-gap until Congress decides the size of the role Fannie Mae should play in the mortgage field.

Fannie Mae's Future

The blueprint of Fannie Mae calls for the agency to pass into private hands eventually through the sale of its common stock to banks and other lenders. The money Fannie Mae makes from its mortgage and stock sales will be used to buy back the preferred stock held by the Treasury Department. Once this is done, the Government will not own the agency. Instead Fannie Mae will be owned by the common stockholders, just as a private corporation.

Baughman Feb. 7 said he expected Fannie Mae would become privately owned within seven to 10 years, barring unusual mortgage market conditions. He said, however, that the Government should maintain some supervision over the agency to make sure it continued to provide liquidity in the secondary mortgage market.

Baughman said Fannie Mae was a "very necessary" activity in the mortgage field. He said Congress appeared to be interested in enlarging its role. The agency employs 92 persons in Washington and 560 in its field offices.

Political Notes

REPUBLICANS PLAN FOR 1958

Republican National Chairman Meade Alcorn March 12 announced plans for six regional conferences in April and May to kick off the 1958 election campaign, which he said will be "the most intensive campaign to elect a Republican Congress in the history of the party." In a letter to Alcorn, President Eisenhower said he was "delighted" with the early start on "the all-important task of electing a Republican" Congress.

Alcorn said the conferences would not be used to "indoctrinate" party workers with "modern Republicanism," nor would any effort be made to "purge" candidates who did not agree with the President's program. "So far as incumbents are concerned," he said, "we respect the right of the people in the state and district to make their own free choice. We will support all nominees of the Republican party."

Rep. Richard M. Simpson (R Pa.), Chairman of the Republican Congressional Campaign Committee, said he did not think it "necessary or proper" for the President to conduct a "grass roots campaign" in 1958, but hoped he would stress the importance of electing a Republican Congress. Chairman Andrew F. Schoepel (R Kan.) of the Senate Republican Campaign Committee March 13 said he expected President Eisenhower to take an active but "dignified" part in the 1958 Congressional campaign.

Political Briefs

NEW POLITICAL GROUP

Third party members who supported T. Coleman Andrews for President in the 1956 elections March 5 announced their intention to organize in all states and present their Presidential candidate in 1960. The new group, the Interim Committee for Independent Political Action, said its leaders were convinced the two existing parties "are but one left-wing party determined to establish an all-powerful central government in Washington," and announced a platform demanding more states' rights, lower taxes and an end to "the fog of socialism."

FOR AMERICA

"For America", a group organized in 1954 to fight "super-internationalism" and seek "return to constitutional government," March 12 reorganized with former Utah Gov. J. Bracken Lee (R) as national chairman. The organization rewrote its original platform, put income tax repeal at the top of its list of objectives. It also adopted resolutions calling spending by the Eisenhower Administration a "national tragedy" and urging defeat of pending civil rights legislation.

FOLGER RESIGNS

State Roundup

ILLINOIS -- The Illinois House Executive Committee March 6 voted 23-13 for an indefinite postponement of a Democratic-sponsored measure to explore further into the administration of former State Auditor Orville E. Hodge and study governmental reorganization. Hodge was sentenced Aug. 15, 1956 on charges of misappropriating Federally insured bank funds. (Weekly Report, p. 315)

NEW YORK -- Supreme Court Justice Henry Clay Greenberg March 5 ruled that New York County GOP Leader Thomas J. Curran was "not unreasonable" in opposing formation of the Metropolitan Republican Club because of "danger of confusion to the public." Among the 11-member group seeking to incorporate the new club were John A. Roosevelt, Charles F. Willis Jr. and Stanley M. Rumbough, the latter two former Eisenhower aides in the White House. The proposed group said its purpose was to set up a club free of "overt" party control "to attract independent Eisenhower supporters" into GOP ranks.... The state assembly March 12 passed, by a 91-53 vote, a bill calling for primary elections on Sept. 10. (Weekly Report, p. 315)

TEXAS -- The state senate March 12 rejected, by a 10-18 vote, an effort to bring up a measure which would do away with the April 2 special Senate election to fill the Senate seat vacated by Gov. Price Daniel (D) and currently held by William A. Blakley (D). The bill in effect would leave interim Sen. Blakley in office until the expiration of the term in 1959. (Weekly Report, p. 315).... Dr. Frank Connally (D) of Waco March 8 withdrew from the Senate race for the April 2 special election.

KENNEDY PROPOSALS FOR DEMOCRATS

Sen. John F. Kennedy (D Mass.), writing in Life magazine, March 6 proposed a six-point program for the Democratic party:

- Willingness to "embrace new ideas, new policies and new faces, unafraid of controversial issues or candid criticism."
- Increasing willingness "to put the party's future ahead of sectional, factional and personal disputes and ambitions."
- Shaping of a "responsible, progressive record with deeds that match...words."
- Demonstration of "leadership in the problems of prosperity as...(done)...in the past on the problems of poverty";
- Offering of "constructive opposition in the field of foreign policy" by "Democratic spokesmen in and out of Congress";
- Willingness "to substitute new life and...leadership for the luxury of petty local factionalism."

SENATE CANDIDATES REPORT SPENDING $3.3 MILLION IN 1956 . . .

Senate Election Cost $3.3 Million

Seventy-two Senate candidates reported they spent $3,251,-458.86 in their 1956 election campaigns. CQ's tabulation of figures from reports filed with the Secretary of the Senate and information of the Senate Rules and Administration Privileges and Elections Subcommittee show the 72 candidates reported receiving $3,221,346.09 in contributions for their campaigns. There were 35 Senate elections in 33 states.

Democratic candidates reported receiving $1,492,985.46 and spending $1,506,752.40. Republican candidates reported receiving $1,723,020.19 and spending $1,733,678.53. Other candidates reported receiving $5,340.40 and spending $11,027.93.

Receipts from persons and groups outside the candidate's states totaled $516,111.15, of which Democratic candidates reported receiving $114,801.04 and Republican candidates $401,310.11.

In 1954, 73 candidates and their election committees reported total Senate campaign spending of $870,181.02. Of this, 40 Democrats reported they spent $461,375.37; 33 Republicans reported spending $406,465.66. (1955 Almanac, p. 722, 731)

In 1952, the last Presidential election year, 66 Senate candidates filed spending reports that said they spent $723,206. Of the total, Democrats reported spending $269,427.66 and Republican candidates said they spent $453,778.35. (1953 Almanac, p. 40)

Although reported campaign costs were obviously higher in 1956 than in previous years, part of the huge difference between 1956 spending and that of 1948 and 1952 may be explained by the more complete job of reporting spending in 1956. Prior to 1956, only Congressional Quarterly compiled spending and receipt totals from reports filed with the Secretary of the Senate. In 1956, the Senate Privileges and Elections Subcommittee undertook the compiling of exhaustive reports filed with state and local groups as well as the Secretary of the Senate. The Subcommittee also received reports from the individual Senate candidates.

But even as CQ noted in its 1952 and 1956 reports that the figures shown were incomplete and complete totals would be much higher, so the Subcommittee in 1956 said its totals only were partially complete. (Weekly Report, p. 156)

Total Republican and Democratic candidates' spending in 14 contests in 13 states exceeded $50,000. The states: California, New York, Oregon, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Idaho, Maryland, Connecticut, Kentucky, Nevada, Wisconsin and the second race in Kentucky.

Total Democratic and Republican spending topped $200,000 in four races (asterisk denotes winner):

†Instances when a candidate's receipts and expenditures may be duplicated in receipts and expenditures reported by committees working in his behalf. In these cases (instead of totalling a candidate's receipts and expenditures with those of committees working in his behalf to get the grand total for all expenses and receipts pertaining to one candidate) the bigger of the two sets of figures is included in the tabulation.

Candidates' Receipts, Expenditures

Following is a state list of 1956 election campaign receipts and expenditures by Senatorial candidates. Following each candidate's name are his total campaign receipts and expenditures. The total includes receipts and expenditures of local committees working in a candidate's behalf, as well as those by the individual candidate.

Also listed are totals of out-of-state and labor receipts, and contributions of $500 and more to individual candidates or to their local committees. In the case of former Sen. Herman Welker (R Idaho) the figures cover the primary campaign as well as the general election. In some others, figures include unexpended primary funds used for the general election campaign.

The incumbent at the time of the election is denoted by an asterisk, the winner is in capital letters. An (L) indicates a loan to a candidate or committee, rather than an outright contribution.

Information in this listing is taken in part from spending reports filed by Senatorial candidates with the Secretary of the Senate, in part from a spending report by the Senate Rules and Administration Privileges and Elections Subcommittee, headed by Sen. Albert Gore (D Tenn.). This is a continuation of previous spending information. (Weekly Report, p. 155, p. 226)

Farm Bloc Split

A flare-up of partisanship within the group of Representatives usually standing together in the farm bloc primarily was responsible for killing a proposed emergency corn program. While city members of both parties stood united against the subsidy proposal, farm Representatives split along party lines and lost their voting advantage. Responsibility for killing the measure seems certain to become a bitter, partisan issue in the 1958 Congressional election. Without new corn legislation, say the experts, 1957 will have a surplus corn crop that will result in surplus hog production in 1958. (Page 332, 334)

Senate Spending

Seventy-two Senate candidates reported spending $3.3 million in their 1956 election campaigns, according to CQ tabulations. There were 35 Senate elections in 33 states. Democratic candidates reported receiving $1,492,985 and spending $1,506,752. Republican candidates reported receiving $1,723,020 and spending $1,733,678. Candidates in 14 of the elections reported total spending exceeding $50,000. Both candidates in the California contest said they spent a total of $535,698.99, the costliest reported Senate race. Candidates in three other Senate races -- New York, Oregon and Illinois -- also said they spent more than $200,000 in their campaigns. (Page 346)

Labor Rackets

The Senate's hearings on alleged labor racketeering continued to grab off headlines as Portland's mayor, charging the questions were "loaded," refused a lie detector test, and witnesses described shady activities in the Teamsters Union. Teamsters Union Vice President James R. Hoffa was arrested by the FBI on charges of bribery in securing data from Senate files. (Page 337)

Foreign Aid Reports

Seven reports on the foreign aid program were released by a special Senate committee. They included suggestions that foreign aid be applied in all underdeveloped areas, that Iran needed "substantial" assistance to resist Soviet aggression and that all countries outside the Soviet orbit be included in aid programs. (Page 337)

Roll-Call Votes

Budget Fuss

The question of who should cut the budget overshadowed how to cut it, as Congress and the President pointed their fingers at each other. The House passed a Democratic-sponsored resolution asking President Eisenhower to indicate specific reductions. Republicans charged "buck passing," and the Conference of GOP Senators adopted a resolution stating their "accord" with the President's recommendation that Congress cut the budget wherever possible. The President told his news conference a cut was up to Congress, but he'd be as helpful as possible. (Page 329, 336)

Housing Program

The pros and cons of the Administration's housing program and bills to improve the flow of mortgage credit were voiced by a long parade of witnesses before a House Banking and Currency subcommittee. The National Assn. of Real Estate Boards supported Administration proposals to reduce down payments on homes. Spokesmen for the American Life Convention and Life Insurance Assn. said easing down payments would make home loans harder to get. The U.S. Chamber of Commerce recommended a halt to most forms of Federal housing aid. (Page 338)

Fannie Mae

Congress has made the biggest mortgage company in the world even bigger by completing action on a resolution raising by $500 million the borrowing authority of the Federal National Mortgage Assn. -- usually called Fannie Mae. Those who run the Government agency say the move will help thousands of bankers, home buyers and builders. With White House approval of the measure almost certain, Congress next will decide what long-range role the agency should play in the housing field. (Page 329, 338)
